pasted_bf27

Going with the flow Imagine you are skiing down one of your favorite slopes. Powdery snow flies up on both sides of you like white sand. Conditions are perfect. In this state of total immersion, you are completely focused on skiing with precise, effortless movements in the present moment, where your ego dissolves and your consciousness unites entirely with the experience.